pressrelease

The wonderful opening track "Moist" moves us directly into the wet territory of the all beloved deep house sound with its shameless rhythmic percussion and really funky bass - line. This groove will go on for the hungry people amongst you with "Deep pan pizza" which is a delicious trip into the deeper shades of house music.

Now that the mood of the album is set why not slowdown the tempo for "Extintor", a beautiful mid - tempo live drum soul affair which makes you dance slowly into the night and naturally the next track "Faith" is a perfect follow up going into a 120 BPM break beat rhodes thingy accompanied by some nice horn stabs.

Time for some slow dub influenced trippy stuff with "Unlikely", unlike anything you heard before while reaching half of the album the need for more is definitely there and "Original" brings out the flutes on the bossa - like rhythm complete with a nice guitar lead.

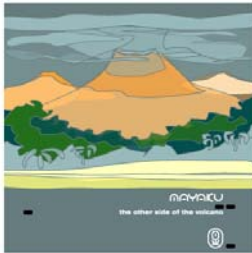

Next up is a serious tempo change with the d&b soul of "Pressure", should stand cool on the classic Goodlooking records series "Logical progression" and "Amazing" using an old vocal sample on top of a nice changing break beat structure. Back to the house with this daring funky tech-house and mostly very dancable piece called "Lodrive", followed again by another trippy downbeat jam called "Umbro". Next track is "Weird" and it is also the title of this track! Trippy as hell, almost new agy with a modern feel to it, very relaxing atmosphere indeed and this leads us to the last song called "Nihilistic" closing this amazing debut Moodlex album off in a cozy slow house way. And now, press repeat!
